Teaching notes

This activity is an alternative way of testing students' knowledge/understanding of some aspects of the American Civil War and can be used as a revision exercise.

- Review 1 tests knowledge/understanding of some of the basic terminology used in the study.
- Review 2 tests knowledge/understanding of some of the main causes/outcomes of the American Civil War.

Instructions

- Each student receives a student sheet (p.4 or p.5, depending which version you are playing).
- They choose nine words from the word bank and put one word in each grid box, in any order that they wish.
- The teacher cuts out the sentence strips from their sheet and puts them in a bag/container.
- They then pull out one sentence at a time and read the definition sentence out (but not the term itself!)
- Students who have the correct term mark that box with an X.
- The winner is the student with the first row (horizontal, vertical, or diagonal) of correctly identified terms.
- At the end, review all sentences and answers.

Variations

- The number of boxes on the grid could be increased and other terms/names added to the word bank.
- Traditionally one line wins, but it could be two lines; one vertical and one horizontal, or any combination chosen by the teacher.
- Although designed as a class activity, it could be played in smaller groups with a student in each group taking the teacher role.
- In a preparatory lesson, students could be involved in designing the activity by, instead of being given the provided word bank, discussing and choosing the words/terms/names etc. to put in the word bank which they consider important in a study of the American Civil War.
- In the review at the end of the activity, students could discuss/suggest alternative definitions for the words in the word bank.
- If using Review 2, as well as marking a box with an X when a word is identified, students could also be asked to jot down one other piece of information about that word/term - for 10 of the 12 it could be a date.
